Forecast For Northern Ireland
Issued by Met Office Aberdeen
at 1600 on Thursday 24 Jun 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 1800 and 0600

Headline:
Rather cloudy with some patchy rain Friday, mainly in west.

This Evening and Tonight:
A wet start to the evening then becoming drier with some clear intervals, just the odd light shower around Lough Foyle. A fresh northerly breeze. Minimum temperature 10 deg C (50 deg F).

Friday:
Mainly cloudy across the Province with some patchy rain developing, chiefly through the morning and to the east of Lough Neagh. Chance of some brighter spells later in day. Maximum temperature 16 deg C (61 deg F).

Outlook for Saturday to Monday:
A lot of dry weather with some sunny spells, and becoming warmer. Perhaps cloudier for a time on Monday.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.